Mr. Archer rose to make a correction of an error in the report of the proceedings of the Senate as published in one of the morning papers of the city. In the answer which he had made yesterday to the inquiry of the Senator from Ohio, whether any communication had been received from the Executive in compliance to the late resolution celling for the diplomatic correspondence on the subject of the Oregon territory, he was reported by the Globe as having said that the result of the "attempted negotiations" would be laid before the Senate in a few deys, and upon this report there was a long editorial commentary. Now, he had made no such expression as "attempted negotiations." He had simply stated that a communication would be received in a few days, submitting what he supposed to be 'the consequences of the negotiations to this House. He did not mean to say what was in fact the character of such communication. Yet, in the correction of this error, he did not impute the least blame to the reporter of the Globe.

Mr. Allen, said he was glad the Senator from Virginia had called the attention of the Senator from Virginia had called the attention of the Senator from virginia had called the attention of the Fornate to the subject of its reported proceedings. The errors of the reporters were attributable to the error of their position in the hall, and not to their want of quickness in apprehending the tenor of what is spoken. Now he, Mr. Allen, had seen several material mistakes in the reports in both the morning ti neither such as the reporter of the Senator should inform Senator tempted" negotiations. He had not used such a word.

[We mention as a singular coincidence, that several reporters consecutively, simultaneously took down from Mr. Archer's remarks yesterday, the words "attempted negotiations." We certainly thought that was the sound. But the honorable Senator from Virginia and other Senators on the floor, must of course know more accurately what he did say, than the reporters in the gallery of confused reverberations. Yet, in giving the honorable Senator the fullest and frankest concession of the justice of his correction, we do most shrewdly suspect that a message communicated from the Executive to-day, will confirm the validity of the supposition arising from the error of the Globe and the Harald, to wit:—That the conclusion of the diplomatic conferences on the Oregon question, is that they were merely "attempted" negotiations. We they were merely "attempted" negotiations. We guess that a message of this nature was received, because of Mr. Archer's promises yesterday that it would come in a few days, because of his remark to-day that important Executive business was on hand, and because of the report back to the Senate of the Oregon bill by Mr. Atchison.]

Mr. Atchison returned from the select commit-tee, to which it had been assigned for examina-tion, the bill for the protection, settlement and ju-risdiction of the United States over the territory of Oregon.

UNIFORM ELECTION DAY.

The House-bill providing for an uniform day in all the states of the Union, for the election of Electors for President and Vice President of the United States, was taken up, and on motion of Mr. Tappan, with a suggestion from Mr. Bernen, was amended so as that such elections shall be held on the "Tuesday next after the first Monday in November." REDUCTION OF POSTAGES.

Mr Merrice called up the bill for reducing the rates of postage, and abating the franking privilege, &c; when, on his motion, it was ordered as the special order for Monday next.

On motion of Mr. Sevier, the Senate took up the bill granting a pension to Asahel Brainard, a drum major in the late war, but who, throwing down the drum, took up his musket at the bloody battle of Bridgewater, and fighting, like Uriah, in the "front rank," he came off minus a leg and arm.

Mr. Barks, of the committee, gave some merely legal objections to the pension proposed.
Mr. Bayard enquired as to the wounds of the old soldier.

Mr. Bayard enquired as to the woulded oldier.

Mr Sevier briefly explained.

Mr. Henderson heartily supported the claim
Mr. Allen manfully defended the veteran's title to the support of his country, for which he had stood so bravely all the hazards of battle, under circumstances (as a drummer,) in which there was no necessity for his exposure.

Mr. Archer sustained Mr. Allen, and said that, (adopting a figure of the honorable Senator from Ohio,) that the voiuntarysoldier, who for his bravery had been knighted on the field of battle, by promotion—who had fought at Bridgewater and Fort Erie, and who had been left a mere wreck, the like

The bill was passed men. con.

A motion was made to adjourn over to Monday when the Senate adjourned, and carried.

Mr. Tappan moved a reconsideration. He desired that the bill for the Smithsonian Institution might be considered to-morrow.

Mr. Archers said that the motion to reconsider could be put after the Senate had executed the consideration of the Executive business before it, which was of great importance. Mr. Tappan submitted.

Washimoron, Thursday, Jan. 16, 1845.

Conrection—In the report of yesterday's proceedings,
M. Dellett, of Ala., is stated to have introduced a bill for the annexation of Texas. This is an error into which your reporter was led as well as others, Mr. Dellett being very conspicuous in the eye of the Speaker. The bill was introduced by Mr. Burke, of N. H.

The proceedings were commenced as usual, by prayer
by the Chaplaiu.

Passyon King, of N Y., rose, and referring to the statement, which appeared in the National Intelligencer, of the duel between Messra. Clingman and Yancey, offered a motion for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into the facts connected therewith, and report to the House, with a resolution of expulsion of those members.

Mr. Payna, of Alas, moved to lay the resolution on the members.

Me Payme, of Alabama, wished to know upon what grounds this resolution was proposed. Had it been shown that any duel hal taken place between members of this House? Not there was a tumor that such had been shown that any duel hal taken place between members of this House? Not there was a tumor that such had been the case, and if they were to legislate upon rumor, they might have plenty to do during the remainder of the session on the same grounds. But admitting that a duei had taken place, he desiled that the House had any such power as it was now proposed to exercise. It then called for the redding of the law respecting duelling in the district, which the Clear having read, he proceeded to argue that Congress had by that law designated the punishment of such offences to the Courts, and passed from themselves all jurisdiction in the matter. He did not wish to impute motives to the mover of the resolution, but he believed that it was all humbing—that it was not even desired or expected that it could be passed, and that it was selely intended to consume time. He hoped it would be laid on the table, or informally disposed of or rejected. The day way to prevent duelling was to place men on an equanity in the field. Place men at a distance of six feet from "ach other, and render it disparedial for any man to attempt to fight at a greater distance, and duelling worth's soon be a boilshed, and it would be abilished in nother way.

Me, Monze, of La., offered an amendment to strike out all after the word resolved, and to appeint a committee to inquire whether any number of the House had wiolated any of the commandments of the Doue langua, either in the District or elsewhere, and to report a resolution to expel all such members as hed been guilty of such violations of the anid commandments.

This smendment was received with laughter from all parts of the House, had only the head of the power in this case. He referred, in the course of his speech, to the dust of the House pay the due to the house provided that no it might be amended so as to direct the committee to inquire, previous to the House making a final disposal of the plates.

Mr. Holmes, of S. C. and Mr. Gerrell, of Mass, made some remarks in reference to the resolution, which were inaudible to the reporter, and the Speaker inquired if Mr. Davis withdrew his suction.

Mr. Davis withdrew his suction.

Mr. Davis suid, de did not He wished to have such a disposition made of the plates, that competition should be excited and the results of the expedition be given to the people of the United States as cheaply as possible. The commender of the expedition had been paid allh is charges and fees, and he had no idea that he was to be permitted to take as muny impressions as he chose and then charge five dollars a volume for the work for doing which he had already been paid.

Mr. Wisyman of Mass., thought that Mr. Davis had misconceived the purport of the resolution and had disevered meanings which were not known to the person who drew it up.

Mr. Schence of O., spoke in support of the proposition to have the results of the expedition so published, as that it could be placed in the hands of avery person, and that it could penetrate to every school room in the country.
He had opposed the resolution to give the copyright to Capt Wilkes, because he wished the government to do its duty in giving the results of the expedition to the world, and then that the copyright should be free as sir, that every one might publish who chose, so that it might be put forth in the cheapeast and best way possible,

Mr. Halle, of N. H., spoke in favor of a reconsideration.
He said that the House had, by a vote, refused to give with Wilkes the use of the plates, but he was informed, that notwithstanding this refusel, Mr. W. had used some of these plates which were to be found in a work published, and now in the library, with a copyright accured
by Mr. Wilkes. He characterized this as a fraud upan
the House and the country, and het hoped that the resolution would be reconsidered, and inqu

The Onderdonk excitement seems to increase in intensity, and spread in extent every succeeding day in this city, and as a matter of consequence, new views are constantly expressed in regard to the "onlines" of the Bishop, as well as the motives of the sentemen who have been the instruments in producing the existing revulation in the religious world. I stated in my last, that the revaletions of Richmond had, to a certain extent, turned the tide of popular sentiment against the Bishop, but this has only had the effect of increasing the conviction in the minds of the friends of the Bishop, that the whole proceedings has been grounded upon an envious and malificious disposition on the part of the Anti Puesyltes, and that as a matter of course, it did not originate in the desire to purge the church from the stain of immorabity and corruption. HORRIBLE CATASTROPHE.—A most tragical occurrence took place at the house of Wm. Hardison, on Fox street, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Collins, accompanied by her nicce, Sarah Broughton, a young girl about 13 years of age, called in at Mrs. Hardison's to rest They found Hardison and his wife at dinner; and while at the table, Hardison (who appeared to be much excited) drew a pistol and said something about the intrusion of cats upon his premises, and threatening to shoot them. He then cocked the pistol, fired, and the ball took effect upon Sarah, just below the left eyebrow, pessing entirely through the head and causing almost, instent death.—
